

and Rixey led the attack on Perdue.

Miller took revenge on his old mates by poling a triple that counted a run.

Buy the flag for Boston in the American. Stahl's Red Sox walloped the Athletics in a lop-sided game.

Eddie Plank handed the Red Sox but seven hits. They were bunched in the fourth and fifth, however, and Boston counted six times.

Ray Collins had the number of every Mack but Oldring. The Rube nudged a double and single.

A double by McInniss registered only score for world's champs.

Engel, a 19-year-old youngster from the Washington lots, pitched Nationals to victory over New York. He was jolted for but six hits.

Three of five hits Washington made off Fisher were grouped in seventh and Washington scored twice, enough to win.

Kenworthy, an outfielder secured from Denver, played left for Washington, stinging two hits, one of them coming in the "lucky seventh."

Griffith apparently admits his team cannot beat Boston for the rag. He has not used Engel since the first of the season, when it was not dreamed the Nationals would create such a stir in the race. Using the youngster now indicates Grif is preparing for next year.

Callahan and his band had a day of rest in Cleveland. After games in the Forest City today and tomorrow they return home Sunday to tackle the Tigers on the South Side lot.

The suspension of Morris Rath has stirred the White Sox. According to a letter from Ban Johnson, Rath was suspended for "hitting Umpire Westervelt."

Sox allege that Westervelt was hit in the neck by some sand thrown by Bill Carrigan of Boston, and the ump selected Morris for the goat. Rath is an inoffensive fellow and the game Wednesday was the first he has missed this year.

Rath has sent an affidavit to Johnson that he did not strike Westervelt, and an investigation will probably be the outcome. All season the Sox have had trouble with this umpire, who seems to be the incompetent member of an otherwise efficient staff.

Douglas, a pitcher from Des Moines, and Roland Barrows, who has been with the Sox before, playing this year with Jersey City, joined the South Siders in Cleveland. Barrows has been playing a great game in the International League.

Because of poor condition of Ray Temple, his scheduled match with Freddie Welch at Winnipeg Monday night has been canceled.

Packey McFarland has defied Ad. Wolgast and meets Joe Hirst in Philadelphia tonight. Wolgast stated he would call off his scrap with Packey if the stockyards fighter met Hirst.

That fight in San Francisco Labor Day between Jim Flynn